RADIO-TV WORKSHOP
AT UM AUG. 18-23

MISSOULA--

Twenty persons interested in radio and television broadcasting are getting a chance this week to learn about announcing, board work and production in a radio-TV workshop at the University of Montana School of Journalism.

The workshop meets from 9 a.m.-10 p.m./Monday through Saturday (Aug. 18-23). UM radio and TV lab facilities and the FM station of KUFM radio give students actual, on-the-air experience.

Instructors for the one-week workshop are Philip J. Hess, director of radio and TV and associate professor of journalism at UM, and Mrs. Penny Wilson, production director of the UM radio-TV studios.

Said Hess, "A person intending to enter the broadcast field will find it advantageous to take the radio-TV course. Many stations prefer an engineer who is also qualified as an announcer."

Those participating include: Larry Armogost, Jon J. Brown and Janet Burns, Billings; Terry Bowers, Brian F. Lawrence and Jon D. Newman, Butte; Ray C. Dommer, Ledger; Thomas S. Glendenning, Bozeman; Steve Helmbrecht, Havre.

Also, Dennis E. Lietzow, Deer Lodge; Michael G. Manion, Kalispell; John T. McNulty, Townsend; George M. Miller, Dillon; James S. Umber, Jr., Lewistown; Steven L. Christiaens, Hel Helena; Rodney E. Briggs, Clyde Park; Kenneth H. Brown, Libby; John M. Paxson, Missoula; Stephen J. Smith, Rock Springs, Wyo., and David Killian, Seattle, Wash.
